Indigita makes global access to certified online FinSA training for financial advisors easier than ever

Geneva, 15 February 2021 – Swiss regtech company Indigita SA is introducing a new level of convenience for Swiss and international financial advisors to access professional training on the Financial Services Act (FinSA). Thanks to the integration of an online shop feature, the e-learning course can now be purchased directly on the Indigita website, making it easier than ever for financial advisors to acquire the knowledge required by the Financial Services Act to operate in Switzerland.

With the integration of an online shop solution on its website, Indigita is responding to increasing demand for its certified e-Learning solutions. The FinSA training is the first course, which can be purchased directly online, with more courses planned to be offered this way in the future.

The FinSA online training has been specifically developed to cover the educational needs of domestic and foreign independent financial advisors, who seek to obtain the knowledge required to be listed in a Swiss register of financial advisors. The course is recognised by two FINMA-licensed certifying bodies, the Association Romande des Intermédiaires Financiers (ARIF) and the Financial Institutions Supervisory Organisation (OSIF). In addition, the course is also recognised by SAQ Swiss Association for Quality to count towards their re-certification programme and therefore of interest for financial advisors working for Swiss banks and financial institutions.

The new online shopping option on indigita.ch reflects the company's core value of simplicity by accepting online payments from most countries via major credit cards, offering access to crucial professional knowledge in a time-efficient manner and without any additional paperwork.

The course is accessible and can be purchased at <https://www.indigita.ch/financial-services-act-advanced>
